

Fairfield College Preparatory School

A Jesuit, Catholic School of Excellence

Dear Parents,

On Friday, June 7th, Fairfield Prep will hold a Reading Day from 8:30AM – 12:05PM to enable students to check in with their teachers in preparation for semester exams which will be held from June 10th – 12th.

Faculty members will be reviewing for exams during their regular class meetings, and this morning will provide a dedicated time for students to review with their teachers the specific topics that teachers have indicated will be focal points of the exam. A session like this is extremely valuable for a student who may have initially struggled in a class. Students should see their teachers for specific details about review sessions.

While students are not required to attend school this day, all students who have a GPA of 3.000 or below or students who have struggled in past exams and are currently struggling in a class are strongly encouraged to attend review sessions on this day. Students can attend review sessions for the following classes during the following times (please pay attention to specific subjects and teachers)

Transportation

Morning bus pickup will be at the regular time. Train busses will also be running from the train station in the morning as they would for any school day. Busses will be at Prep at 12:10PM to drive students home.

The Student Life Center will be open until 12:00PM.

Parents are strongly encouraged to make sure that their son is present for this review session. If, for some reason, your son cannot attend on this day, please work with him to setup some sort of structured schedule for exam preparation during both the week and weekend before exams. Your son should come to these sessions prepared with questions to ask his teachers. We thank you for your help, and we look forward to continuing to work with you and your son to allow him to improve and succeed academically at Fairfield Prep.

Sincerely,
