

Janine W. Hill is the director of fellowship affairs at the Council on Foreign Relations and has been at the organization since 2002. She manages the fundraising, recruiting, and selection processes for 11 distinct fellowships. Before joining CFR, Mrs. Hill had a legal and financial career. She holds a J.D. from Harvard Law School and a B.A. from the University of Paris. Mrs. Hill is on the board of trustees of the Partnership Schools (PNYC), a network of seven urban Catholic schools in Harlem and the South Bronx, serving over 2,000 students from two of the poorest congressional districts in the country.